The College

The college of Fisheries was established in 1991 under the Gujarat Agricultural university. With bifurcation of GAU, it became constituent college of Junagadh Agricultural University with effect from 2004. The College works with a mandate to pro-actively promote, co-ordinate and execute efforts towards quality education, research and extension of Fisheries Science.

Background

Recognizing the growing demand for responsible, sustainable and quality fishery products, quality standards backed by certification has been introduced in national/international basis to protect consumer health and to ensure fair practice in food trade. Standard and certification has become facilitator in global food trade. Fisheries managers are using product certification to support their management and conservation efforts. FAO has also recognized certification of fish products as potential market based tools in minimizing potential negative impacts and increasing confidence in the process of fish production marketing. The course addresses to theoretical as well as practical insights into those aspects with reference to quality management of fish processing industry.

Course Content:

- Quality concept and quality management in fish trade.
- Quality assessment of fish and fishery products.
- HACCP and GMP.
- National and International standards.
